

TenCard is for all to use

I'd like to correct an inaccuracy in your article "Students can grab a bargain with TenCard" (Leader, December 1).

TenCard discount cards are available to anyone who wants to purchase one. Not just students.

Recently, a lot of our sales have been to parents or grandparents of 18-25 year-olds, looking for an extra little gift to go with Christmas presents. You don't have to be a student to enjoy the discounts.

Ryan Wardell
TenCard Pty Ltd

Novotel does need facelift

In reply to Mick Freedman "Ugly is as ugly does" last week: the Novotel could do with painting, and the corner "historic terrace" has needed a re-do for the last 30 years – it is an eyesore. Mr Freedman suggests the terraces could be incorporated into a new development, which is at odds with his stance against Brighton becoming a mini Surfers Paradise. Last time I heard, Surfers was a very popular place to visit!

Brighton has much potential and should not be neglected.

Louise Fraser
Brighton-Le-Sands

Muslim tag is irrelevant

I note that Mr Shaoquett Moselmane has been described as the first Muslim member of State Parliament (Legislative Council) in a number of newspapers. Why does his religion have anything to do with his selection? I hope he simply represents his constituents, no matter what their faith.

Alan
Oyster Bay