

Oh, get elected

What is really a waste of time is hearing from the same old, empty vessels pining over pines.

They suffer and yearn about six scrawny pines as they wither and waste away, showing their grief and mourning for the bygone days when these pines were healthy.

Rockdale has more than 90,000 residents who should be forgiven for believing that an un-representational vocal minority of negative-minded individuals actually know what they are on about.

What have they ever accomplished? Perhaps they should stop casting stones at our elected representatives and stand up at the next elections to test their wayward and often absurd views.

Brian Green
Brighton-Le-Sands

